OMNI HOTEL
YALE | NEW HAVEN
OCTOBER 23 - 25
Jeannine Gluck
2016 Conference Chair

On behalf of the Conference Planning Committee, welcome to New Haven and to the 2016 NAHSL Conference! We have a great program planned. Jack Hughes, Susan Keane Baker and William Powers will talk to us about access, costs and quality of health care; customer experience; and using data for social good. Our members and friends will share their knowledge through CE classes, breakout sessions, presentations, posters, and lightning rounds. We will provide plenty of opportunity for you to network with colleagues and visit exhibitors.

Connecticut has a diverse and interesting history. Our conference highlights the legacies of a handful of our most notable people. The Cushing/Whitney Medical Library, where our welcome reception takes place, was named for Harvey Cushing, the “father of modern neurosurgery” and John Hay Whitney, Yale alumnus and philanthropist. Tours of the Cushing Center are the highlight of the Sunday reception.

On Monday evening, we pay homage to a different group. Few know of P.T. Barnum’s ties to the history of the health sciences in Connecticut. He was instrumental in founding Bridgeport Hospital and served as its first president. His distant cousin, General Tom Thumb, also of Bridgeport, was a member of his travelling circus.

Enjoy our historical and cultural attractions. See dinosaurs at the Peabody Museum. Sample our famous apizza, or eat at Louis Lunch, home of the hamburger. Then join with our colleagues as we share our knowledge and look to our future.

Our conference would not be possible without the financial support of our exhibitors and sponsors. Please be sure to visit with them and thank them. My own heartfelt appreciation goes out to the 2016 Conference Planning Committee members. I was very fortunate to work closely with this amazing and creative group over the past two years. Please join me in thanking them for all their hard work and dedication.
On behalf of myself and the NAHSL Executive Board, welcome to the 2016 Annual Meeting! Many thanks to Jeannine Gluck, our Conference Chair, and the Conference Planning Committee. They have put together a fun and informative program that highlights famous Connecticut residents and their contributions to medical science. They’ve worked very hard these past two years and deserve our appreciation for their efforts. I hope you will make your best effort to attend the speaker forums, the breakout sessions, and the social events.

I would also like to thank the NAHSL Executive Board. These devoted individuals volunteer their time to ensure our organization stays strong and relevant. Recent changes in health sciences librarianship have presented great challenges for all. The efforts of the Executive Board help NAHSL to remain strong and focused on meeting those challenges. For this purpose we drafted and implemented a 3-year strategic plan during the 2014-2015 year. We continue to use that plan not only to guide efforts to increase and engage membership and remain fiscally sound, but also to expand our focus and try new ideas.

I encourage you to get involved with NAHSL. We need committee chairs and members - fresh faces with fresh ideas. Teach a CE class, or reach out and encourage others to join. These are all ways you can help NAHSL remain healthy and vibrant.

Finally, step right up and enjoy our three-ring circus! We have networking, we have speakers, we have papers, posters, and panels! Take a photo to remember your time at the NAHSL Circus! Become a (airbrushed) tattooed librarian! Most importantly, use what you learn here to imagine, innovate, and inspire at your libraries back home!

The Cushing Center opened in June 2010 in honor of Dr. Harvey Cushing, often referred to as the “father of modern neurosurgery.” (He was also an author, collector and bibliophile.) Exhibits include the unique Cushing Brain Tumor Registry, an immense archival collection that includes whole brain specimens, many of which are on display. Also on view are his drawings, patient photographs, discovery drawers of medical and scientific artifacts and instruments, and a small sampling from the rare book collection of Cushing.

Access, Costs & Quality: The Iron Triangle of Healthcare

Jack Hughes, MD
Professor of Medicine
Yale University

Dr. Hughes is Professor of Medicine at Yale School of Medicine, where he has received several awards from medical students and medical residents for excellence in teaching. He directs a course for first year medical students called “Professional Responsibility” that deals with medical ethics, professional behavior, and the health care system.

He has helped to develop patient classification systems that use computerized patient care data, as well as methods for detecting potentially preventable hospital complications and preventable readmissions.

His academic interests include health care finance, cost containment strategies, and the evaluation and development of risk-adjustment mechanisms.
Susan Keane Baker works with organizations that want to be known for great service experiences and with people who want happier patients. She is the author of five books, including:

- Managing Patient Expectations
- Higher HCAHPS Scores: The Willing to Recommend Approach
- “I’m Sorry To Hear That…” Real Life Responses to Patients’ 101 Most Common Complaints About Health Care

Her professional experience includes seventeen years serving in vice president for operations positions at hospitals in New York and Connecticut. She also directed the quality initiatives program for a national managed care program with nineteen million members.

Susan is a current commissioner on the Connecticut State Commission on Medicolegal Investigations. She is a past member of the Board of Examiners for the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award.
William Powers is the author of the New York Times bestseller, Hamlet’s BlackBerry. Widely praised for its insights on the digital future, the book grew out of a paper he wrote as a Shorenstein Fellow at Harvard’s John F. Kennedy School of Government. The book has been selected as the common-read at a number of U.S. colleges and universities, and published in many other languages, including Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Polish, German and Russian.

He is currently a research scientist at the Laboratory for Social Machines at the MIT Media Lab, developing new technologies to solve social problems. A former Washington Post staff writer, he is a two-time winner of the National Press Club’s Rowse Award for best American media commentary. In recent years, he has spoken at South By Southwest, the Aspen Ideas Festival and many other conferences and organizations in the U.S. and abroad.
Barbara Epstein, MSLS, is director of Pitt’s Health Sciences Library System (HSLS). Under her direction, HSLS has extended online access to all UPMC hospitals and integrated the professional, patient, and family libraries at UPMC into HSLS. Ms. Epstein has been principal investigator and project manager for multiple grants and contracts from the National Library of Medicine, including those fostering instructional outreach. She also helped develop the Pittsburgh Health Sciences Library and Bioinformatics Traineeship program funded by the National Library of Medicine.

Ms. Epstein is a member of the Academy of Health Information Professionals of the Medical Library Association. She received her BA from the University of Pittsburgh and her master of library science degree from Case Western Reserve University.

Option 1: Evaluation & Assessment

Panelists: 3:00pm - 4:00pm
Jessica Kilham, MLIS Public Services Health Sciences Librarian Quinnipiac University
Heather Johnson, MLIS Research & Education Dartmouth College
Kate Nyhan, MLIS Research & Education Librarian Yale School of Public Health

Location: College
With the release of ACRL’s new Framework for Information Literacy, assessment is on the mind of all instruction librarians. Busy schedules and limited time to spend with students mean librarians must find innovative ways to assess student learning. Three librarians will share how they are using creativity and resourcefulness to measure the success of their library instruction.

Option 2: Library Services in Hospital Mergers and Acquisitions: A Panel Discussion

Panelists: 3:00pm - 4:00pm
Margo Coletti, AMLS, AHIP Director, Knowledge Services Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center
Dina McKelvy, MLS, AHIP Manager, Library & Knowledge Services Maine Medical Center
Katherine Stemmer-Frumento, MLS, MBA, AHIP Greenwich Hospital

Location: Wooster
Many hospital librarians find themselves in a partnership with other libraries due to a merger or acquisition. Determining the path to coordination of services and resources can be confusing. We will hear from three librarians who have made, or are in the midst of making, this journey.

Panelists:
Margo Coletti, AMLS, AHIP
Dina McKelvy, MLS, AHIP
Katherine Stemmer-Frumento, MLS, MBA, AHIP

Moderator: Chelsea Delnero, MLIS
Moderator: Jeannine Cyr Gluck, MLS, AHIP
Option 1: So Your Paper Is Non-compliant: Understanding and Troubleshooting the NIH Public Access Policy

Instructors: Rebecca Reznick-Zellen  Julie Goldman

Location: College
A review of the NIH Plan for Increasing Access to Scientific Publications and Digital Scientific Data from NIH Funded Scientific Research. We will discuss the existing requirements and tools for the NIH Public Access Policy and outline upcoming changes to the NIH model. Specifically, we will review the NIH response to the 2013 OSTP directive for increased public access to scholarly publications and digital data resulting from NIH-funded research, highlighting areas where librarians can anticipate potential service and outreach opportunities.

Option 2: HSLANJ Group Licensing Initiative: Saving Hospital Librarians Time and Money

Instructor: Robert Mackes

Location: Wooster
Medical librarians are increasingly asked to do more with less. The HSLANJ Group Licensing Initiative currently works with librarians in more than 130 hospitals and nonprofit health associations to navigate the increasingly complicated and expensive arena of electronic licensing. HSLANJ GLI staff negotiates pricing and licensing terms, freeing up valuable time for librarians to work with their patrons, rather than spending time on tedious paperwork. Librarians will learn about the HSLANJ Group Licensing Initiative, and whether partnering with the initiative may be right for their library.

NAHSL 2017 | Blazing the Trail

October 20th, 2017
Waltham Woods
Waltham, MA

Join NAHSL in 2017 as we Blaze the Trail with a new conference format.

The 2017 NAHSL conference will be the first one day conference. This new format will be featured every other year. It will still include opportunities to network and learn about hot topics and trends in medical libraries from across the region.

As always, we look to our members to help make the conference informative, engaging, and successful. So save the date and start planning now to join us October 20th, 2017 at Waltham Woods Conference Center in Waltham, MA.

“Do not go where the path may lead, go instead where there is no path and leave a trail.”

– Ralph Waldo Emerson
THANK YOU!

Thank you all for joining us at the 2016 North Atlantic Health Sciences Libraries conference in New Haven, CT. We appreciate the support of our members, our vendors, our sponsors and our volunteers.
